McCabe Curwood rebrands to McCabes.

3 September 2021: National Australian law firm McCabe Curwood has announced that as of Monday 6th September 2021 they are rebranding to McCabes.

The ambitious law firm has also formally launched a Government Division and plans to bolster their commercial practice.

“McCabes is an ambitious and growing law firm; we hold our values at the core of what we do: integrity, excellence and courage.

“The last three years have seen us grow a national footprint, develop a new division, but we have not lost that McCabes difference – we love what we do and go that extra mile for our clients.

“The next stage for our firm is to bolster our commercial offer further. We have the size, strength and expertise to service any legal issue, and we know from the feedback we receive from our clients that the experience we provide as a firm is of excellent quality.”

McCabes was recently included on the AFR most innovative companies list, has expanded to include office in Melbourne, Brisbane and Perth and services major insurance clients, government departments and commercial enterprises.

Andrew Lacey is the Managing Principal of McCabes and the head of commercial litigation.
