The Financial Markets Institute of Australia is Revolutionising Higher Education with Immersive, Real World, Industry- Aligned, Skills-Based Training.

Sydney, 12 October, 2023 ... The Financial Markets Institute of Australia (FMI) has opened enrolment for its groundbreaking, online Diploma of Company Analysis and Portfolio Management, with classes set to begin February 1, 2024.

Accredited by the Australian Government, FMI's diploma is open to students from around the world.

Founder and Course Director Paul Nojin points out that "leading employers no longer require a degree for trainee professional roles. What they want instead are practical, real-world skills, which is what our Diploma of Company Analysis and Portfolio Management provides."

"Our diploma was created specifically to fill the void that previously existed, to equip students with the skills that leading employers require."

Paul Nojin works with every student on an individual basis to ensure they have the opportunity to achieve their best possible outcome.

Paul's past proteges have achieved notable success and risen to senior positions in investment banking including Vice President at Morgan Stanley and Associate Director at Macquarie Group.

"Our graduates are able to impress leading employers with their skills and knowledge analysing companies, analysing value, and analysing the economic outlook. That is the key."

Potential candidates should note the prerequisites: Strong basic math competencies, proficiency with Microsoft Excel, and a passion for the financial markets and investing.
