FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Fusion5 appoints Deepak Nangia as Group CEO

19 November, Auckland, New Zealand: Australasian systems integrator Fusion5 has announced the appointment of Deepak Nangia as Group CEO.

Nangia is an experienced leader in IT and Professional Services businesses, having held senior leadership roles at Satyam (now Tech Mahindra), Capgemini, and, most recently, EY.

Rebecca Tohill, Executive Chair – Fusion5, says Nangia’s appointment will help lead the business into its next phase of growth and expansion. “We believe the market potential locally and further abroad is enormous, both in our traditional focus areas of business applications, and in our high growth areas of Managed Services, Data & Integration, AI, Commerce, and Transformation & Advisory. Deepak brings significant knowledge and experience in these growth areas, both locally and in Asia, which will be beneficial to us as we grow our structure to support a much larger business.”

“I’m truly delighted to join the Fusion5 family,” says Deepak Nangia, Group CEO for Fusion5 Australia and New Zealand. “Fusion5 has a remarkable reputation. It’s clear that the strong foundations it has built are the result of years of hard work, commitment, and high standards set by every member of the Fusion5 team. That foundation is exactly why I’m here and excited to lead Fusion5 into its next era of growth.”

Nangia officially joined Fusion5 in late October. He is based in Sydney but will share his time between Fusion5’s offices in New Zealand and Australia.
