Mini Maestros Makes its Nurturing Your Baby Through Music Course Free for Parents of Lockdown Babies

Lockdown has been tough for everyone, but extra tough for those with new babies – so Mini Maestros is offering new parents this short course as a gift to help them share the love of music with their new baby at home.

Jennifer Smith, Mini Maestros' Music Director says, "We know from the Maternal Child Health Centre information sessions that we have been giving online that new parents are struggling through lockdown. It's so hard to start out on your parenting journey without the normal family and peer support groups, or when you can't even simply get out of the house to mix with other new parents".

"We want to do our bit to help new parents share the love of music with their babies and so we decided to make our Nurturing Your Baby Through Music Course free for any babies in lockdown."

"Our four engaging and educational lessons teach new parents how to nurture important aspects of their baby's development through songs, rhymes, and musical play. These lessons will help new parents build the confidence to make music part of daily life for them and their baby."

"I always tell new parents that they are their baby's most important educator and a parent's voice is their baby's favourite voice in the whole world!"

"Our Online Course will empower new parents to:

- Nurture their baby's language development
- Support their baby's physical development
- Help their baby with settling and self-regulation
- Incorporate musical play in everyday life
- Gain confidence in singing and making music with their baby
- Strengthen the bond between parent and baby
- Understand how music can assist with all aspects of their baby's development
- Build a repertoire of songs and rhymes parent and baby will enjoy for years to come."

"By making our Online Course available free of charge to lockdown babies we can do our bit so that new babies don't miss out on all the nurturing that music has to offer and new parents are helped out just a little."

Parents of lockdown babies can use the Coupon Code "LOVEOFMUSIC" by November 15th to get the Mini Maestros course "Nurturing Your baby Through Music," normally $29, for Free.
