

The Melbourne International Flower and Garden Show returns in 2022, with a new presenting partner, Scotts Osmocote.

After much anticipation, the world-renowned Melbourne International Flower and Garden Show is returning to Carlton Gardens and Royal Exhibition Building from Wednesday 30th March through to Sunday 3rd April 2022 and we are thrilled to announce that this year's show will be presented by Scotts Osmocote.

Andrew Martin, Managing Director of Evergreen Garden Care Australia, said, "Our team is delighted to become the official presenting partner of the Melbourne International Flower and Garden Show in 2022. With Australians spending more time at home due to the COVID-19 pandemic, many people turned to gardening as a way to escape and connect with nature. We are excited to be able to engage with those who are new to the garden category, as well as reconnect with the more experienced gardeners who have come to know and love the range of Scotts Osmocote products."

After taking out Gold in the 2019 Show Garden competition, we are excited to announce that revered landscaping company Candeo Designs will present the Scotts Osmocote Welcome Garden. A new addition to the show, The Scotts Osmocote indoor plant zone will be a must-visit for plant devotees looking to enhance their indoor spaces with free expert advice, science-backed plant care products and an inspirational display of the latest indoor plant trends.

To complement the new and inspiring displays and collections, the Scotts Osmocote Workshop Crew are back with two new and exciting workshops! Join them for a 15 minute workshop where you will be guided through creating your very own insta-worthy indoor or succulent planter that you can take home. From serial plant killers to great plant parents, we promise you will learn all the necessary tips and tricks to keep your indoor plants and succulents alive and thriving.

Scotts Osmocote is also proud to announce that Better Homes and Gardens Presenter, and Scotts Ambassador, Melissa King will be joining in on the fun helping to present workshops and share expert advice from over 25 years as a horticulturist!

The coveted festival will unite plant lovers and flower fanatics from all ages with an enchanting collection of never before-seen floral and landscape designs, educational talks from industry elites, and a catalogue of the latest and greatest gardening products.

“Over the past two years, many of us have turned to plants to breathe new life into our living spaces. Australia’s horticulture industry has shown incredible resilience and we are thrilled to welcome back a phenomenal line up of designers, artists, brands and businesses to Melbourne in March 2022. We look forward to uniting established and emerging talent with visitors of all ages,” said Event Director, Marcus Gale.
